A FAMILY RECORD

OF

OF

WHO EMIGRATED FROM ENGLAND,

AND SETTLED AT ROWLEY, ESSEX COUNTY, MASS., IN 1638.

BY JEREMIAH SPOFFORD, M. D.

HAVERHILL:
E. G. FROTHINGHAM, PRINTER, GAZETTE OFFICE.
1869.

TO

THE NUMEROUS FAMILY

DESCENDED FROM

JOHN SPOFFORD AND ELIZABETH SCOTT,

THIS RECORD

IS RESPECTFULLY DEDICATED.

To those who have in any way aided the work, the author tenders his sincere thanks. Its defects are in part owing to a failure in many cases to receive responses to circulars and letters of inquiry, while to the intrinsic difficulty of copying manuscripts often hastily prepared, must be imputed many of its errors. Much care has been taken in tracing the origin of the family in England, and in securing a satisfactory record of the generations who acted their part in the early history of our own country; and may it excite the present and future generations to emulate the virtues of their ancestors.

INTRODUCTION.

FEW families in this country can trace a more authentic record of their European ancestors than can the Spoffords. We had never found the name in any English work, till our attention was called to several extracts and references of the highest authority, by a young gentleman of New York, to whose researches the family is much indebted.

The earliest mention we have found of this ancient name, appears in "Doomsday Book;" which is a record of all the lands of England, as they were parceled out after the conquest by William, Duke of Normandy, in the year 1061. The entry in the index of the book is as follows: "Spoford.—M. Mot. Silva past. Eurdisc. W. R. Borgescire Wap. Will de Perci. page 322"; by which we understand that at the designated page may be found a record of the meadows, woods, and pastures, in the West Riding of Yorkshire, in a certain Wappentake (or hundred) belonging to William, Earl Percy.

At the page referred to, we find four lines of ancient characters and abbreviated Latin, apparently a record of extensive domains, of greater interest to the Percys, who still hold them, than to us; although it is quite certain that our family, before the conquest, were owners, and either gave their name to, or received it from, this place.

The town of Spofforth, containing three or four thousand inhabitants, still occupies this locality, as may be seen on a map of Yorkshire; and an extensive castle—pronounced by the best authorities to be one of the most ancient in England—and the ruins of which cover nearly an acre of ground, still bears the name of Spofforth Castle.

This place is a Rectory, in ecclesiastical parlance, and ranks next above a Vicarage and below a Deanery. It is now on the estate of Lord Egremont.

In the year 1265, mention is made of Nicholaus de Spauford; and A. D. 1313, Roger Blase de Spofford obtained a pardon from Edward II, for his participation in the conspiracy of the Earls of Lancaster, Warwick, and Arundel, whereby they effected the expulsion and death of Gaviston, the King's favorite.

Thomas Spofford was made Abbott of St. Mary, June 8, 1405. Allen in his History of Yorkshire, says: "The Abbott of St. Mary, however, was little inferior to the Archbishop of the province, being mitred, and having a seat in Parliament, which entitled him to the appellation of "my Lord." He, and the Superior of Selby, were the only two Abbots thus honored in the north of England. Subsequently, being elected Bishop of Rochester, and at the same time appointed Bishop of Hereford by the Pope's bull, Nov. 17, 1422, he chose the latter bishopric." Brown Willis in his "History of Cathedrals," speaks of Thomas Spofford as having been made Lord Bishop as above, and adds: "While Bishop he bestowed much in building the episcopal palace, where are yet remaining the initial letters of his name in the chapel windows. We have seen an allusion to him as "the worshipful fader and lord Tho. Spofford, late Bishop of Hereford." In Catterick church is this inscription in memory of him,—he having, it is supposed, built the chancel there:—"Orate pro anima Domini Thome Spofford, Abbatis Monasterii Beate Marie, Ebor istius Eccls Rectoris ie Impropriator"—Pray for the soul of my lord Thomas Spofford, Abbot of the beautiful monastery of St. Mary of York, &c.

John Spofford was for many years Vicar of Silkstone. The journal of the House of Lords for Dec. 24, 1642, after a preamble setting forth the bad character and want of qualification of many who had been promoted to ecclesiastical offices by the late King, then dethroned, proceeds as follows: "It is this day ordered by the Lords and Commons, that John Spofford, clerk, shall be enabled to serve the church, and receive the profits of the Vicarage of Silkstone, aforesaid, in the West Riding of Yorkshire. And the Archbishop and Archdeacon are hereby prohibited to present or grant institution or induction to any other clerk for the Vicarage of Silkstone, till both Houses of Parliament shall take further order concerning the same." Journal, vol. 5, page 516. Harvard College Library.

Of the same person, Calamy—an ecclesiastical historian—says: "Mr. John Spawford, or Spofford, was many years Vicar of the church, which on account of its beautiful structure was called the 'Minster of the Moors.' He was a pious man, of competent learning and ability, plain in his preaching, holy in his life, facetious in his conversation, and a lover of all good men. He was ejected for non-conformity about 1663, when Mr. Robert Cotton, a worthy, pious gentleman of the parish, took him to his house where he died in 1668."

We have at present, no means of proving beyond a doubt our descent from these honorable personages; but nothing is more probable than that the John Spofford who came to America with a company of Dissenters, and settled at Rowley in 1638, was son to him of the same name and faith, who was made Vicar of Silkstone four year later. The names John and Thomas, it seems, were in constant use in the families on both sides of the water. If this conjecture is true, the son leaves England during the civil wars which preceded the dethronement of Charles I., and the father had better fortunes under the Parliament and Cromwell; but was ejected from his living after the restoration under Charles II., when being seventy-five years of age, he was too far advanced in life to follow his son to America.

History informs us that Rev. Ezekiel Rogers, with many families from Yorkshire, England, where he had been a laborious minister for seventeen years, emigrated to this country and settled between Newbury and Ipswich in the year 1639. His grant extending from the sea-shore to Cochichawick, now Andover,* and was enlarged in 1640, to include the "neck on Merrimack river," as the settlers, about sixty families, were "straightened for land;" so, in addition to the present site of Rowley, Georgetown and Boxford, the General Court granted in addition the territory now occupied by the towns of Bradford and Groveland.

We have no list of the names of this company, more than may be gathered from records of the division of lands, births, deaths, marriages, and those who held offices among them. This is doubtless owing to the burning of the house of Mr. Rogers, who would not have failed to record the names of the pioneers in so important an enterprise.

The name of John Spofford appears on the record of the first division of lands into homestead lots, in 1643. He had a house lot of one and a half acres on Bradford street so-called, near the centre of the present town of Rowley. Lots were also assigned him in the "fresh meadows, the salt meadows, the village lands, the Merrimack lands, and shares in the ox pasture, the cow pasture and the calf pasture." His wife was Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Scott of Ipswich, but we find no record of their marriage. The birth of a daughter, Elizabeth, is recorded, Dec. 15, 1646.

He lived for about thirty years in what is still Rowley, and in the spring of 1669 removed to "Spofford's Hill" in the west part of the town, and was without doubt the first settler in Georgetown, and the progenitor of all of the name in the United States and Canada; and also of most of the Harrimans and Brocklebanks, and many of the Nelsons, Chaplins and Tenneys of Georgetown; also many of the Kimballs, Haseltines, Hopkinsons, Parkers, Burbanks and Woods of Bradford and Groveland; and many of the Peabodys, Kimballs and Adamses of Boxford.

The town of Rowley in 1668 laid out a farm "at the Gravelle Plain near the Bald Hills," to which, tradition says, the name of "Bald Pate" was given, the trees having been removed to clear the land for pasturage; a use to which most of it has been devoted to the present day.

This farm John Spofford took on a lease for twenty-one years. For the first five years he was to pay as rent "three hundred feet of white oak plank, and after that time, ten pounds each year—one-half in English corn at price current, or Indian corn if he pleases—the other half in fat cattel or leane, at price current." This lease was assigned to his sons John and Samuel, March 16, 1676, and the rent reduced to eight pounds, and to be wholly remitted "duringe the time of the Indian wars," and it was extended by agreement three score years from the date thereof. John, Jun., was twenty years of age at the date of this lease, and he and his son John lived, reared families, and died on this farm before its expiration. Samuel—then twenty-four years of age—survived the lease nearly seven years.

Why this removal several miles into an almost unbroken wilderness was made, and this farm taken upon a lease, by John, Sen., when land was so plenty, and after having half a dozen lots assigned him in the division, does not appear; perhaps the "benefit of penning the cattel" was a valuable privilege. His descendants were owners of nearly one thousand acres of adjoining lands, at the time the lease expired; when the farm reverted to the town. The northerly part of it was soon after set off to the Second Parish, and was sold or leased for nine hundred and ninety-nine years. The remaining part was let on seven year leases, until 1851, when it was sold to Mr. Sewell Spofford, and is at present (1869) owned by his son.

The family name has varied much in its spelling, both in England and America. The English authorities are copied as printed. In the body of the before-mentioned lease, the name is twice spelled Spofforth—it is signed Spofford—but the renewed lease in 1676 is signed John and Samuel Spofforth. On the gravestone of this John 2d in the old burying ground at Bradford, bearing the date 1697, it is spelt Spafford, and on the gravestone of Samuel in the cemetery in Georgetown, it is Spaffard. The name was usually spelt with an a at the time of the Revolution, and the descendants of those who left this vicinity at about that time retain this orthography, but Spofford is now nearly uniform in Massachusetts, and it is claimed, conforms with the most ancient authorities in England.

It will be the plan of this work to spell the name of each family according to their own usage, though it is found that in the earlier generations the name of the same person is often written in different ways.

Some confusion may arise to those unacquainted with the localities named, from the number of towns into which Rowley has been dividod. The part of the town in which the family first settled, is Rowley still, but we think no one of the name has lived there since the first settler left in 1669; while New Rowley, being the second parish in Rowley—now Georgetown—has sent out many sons and daughters to people distant places. Bradford was set off from Rowley in 1675, Georgetown in 1838, and Groveland from Bradford in 1850. There were in Georgetown in 1813 twelve families and twenty voters of the name, and nearly the same number may be found there at present. There are also a few families in Groveland and in Boxford, but by far the largest number of the descendants are scattered in distant towns and States.

Five generations, including the first couple, are now numbered with the dead. Mrs. Hale of Groveland (No. 105), and Mrs. Perley of Haverhill (No. 98), were the last of the fifth generation. The sixth generation is now fast leaving the stage; few, if any, can be found under sixty-five years of age, and the families in distant places are many of them a generation in advance of us, probably from the circumstance that those who emigrated were generally the elder members of their respective families.

Though few of the name have been high in office, a very large part have been highly respectable in life. We number—so far as known—eleven physicians, six clergymen, three lawyers, several prominent merchants and shipowners, and many magistrates and legislators, one colonel and one brigadier-general in the late war.

This record will be arranged by generations. Every person when first mentioned with the date of birth, will be numbered, and that number will be placed against the name whenever it appears as the head of a family. At the top of each page will be placed the generation of both parents and children.

Many omissions and some errors will be noticed. In some cases ancient records and gravestones disagree; many letters of inquiry have remained unanswered, while others have given few names and dates. The writer undertook this task because no one had done it before him, and his memory extending back to the time when many of the fourth generation were yet alive, he supposed he could arrange the family connections better than any one of a later generation.

The foregoing Introduction to the Spofford Genealogy is reprinted nearly as in the former edition, omitting only such paragraphs as have been superseded by later investigations.

That there exists in the county of Yorkshire, England, the ruins of an ancient castle, bearing for eight hundred years the name of Spofford, is fully proved by extracts from English works which will be hereafter given; and the writer has conversed with intelligent emigrants from that vicinity who have wandered among and clambered over these ruins. That an extensive domain was connected with this ancient seat is sufficiently proved by the record of the survey as given in "Doomsday Book"—mentioned in the former edition.

The only remaining question of interest to us, is—were the Spoffords in possession of these estates prior to the Conquest, our ancestors? It is not claimed that the walls and halls which now lie in ruins are identical with those possessed by "Gamelbar de Spofford;" as we have record of their later demolition and repairs, in successive civil wars; but that here was the family seat of the Spoffords eight hundred years ago, and that those of the name now living in England and America are direct descendants from the honorable personages who held this domain, and who lived within the sheltering walls of this castle till dispossessed at the Conquest, seems to be satisfactorily proved.

We quote from a History of Yorkshire, vol. 2, page 200:

"Spofforth or Spofford is a small parish town three miles from Wetherby. Before the Conquest Gamelbar de Spofford was lord of this manor; after which William de Percy had here four carucates of land,* nine villians† and ten borders.‡ William de Percy obtained a grant for a market here on Fridays in the year 1224, and in 1309 Henry de Percy procured a license to fortify his castle here. Henry de Percy—the first Earl of Northumberland—was slain at Bramham Moor, within a few miles of this house, in 1407.

"After the battle of Towton, in 1462, so fatal to Henry VI., in which were slain the Earl of Northumberland and Richard Percy his brother, their estates were laid waste, and everything entirely destroyed by the enraged conquerors.

'Leland says: The manor-house of Spofford was sore defaced in the time of the civil wars between Henry VII. and Edward IV., by the Earl of Warwick and the Marquis of Montecute. After lying in ruins some time, we find that the house was again made tenable, for in the year 1559, Henry lord Percy obtained a license to fortify his houses at Spofford and Lackenfield.

'It is most probable that this mansion was last demolished in the civil wars of Charles I., about 1635, as Samuel Ingoldsby, Esq., steward to the Duke of Northumberland, resided here in 1600.

‡ Of this term we have no explanation.

'The present ruins extend forty-five yards from north to south and sixteen from east to west. The situation is on a sloping bank, ending on a low wall of rock within the castle, affording convenience for lower apartments.

'The hall—which has been a most magnificent apartment—was seventy-five feet in length, and thirty-six in breadth, and seems to have been built about the time of Edward III., when the idea of a castle began to give way to that of a palace.' "

We now quote from Burke's Visitation of England, vol. III.—"Before the partition of England among the retainers of the Duke of Normandy, the lordship or manor of Spofforth or Spofford, near Wetherby, Yorkshire, was held by a Saxon family of the same name. It is mentioned in Doomsday Book that Gamelbar de Spofford held lands there previous to the time of the survey, after which the Percys had a grant.

"The family of Spofford may be authoritatively traced to within a few miles of this place, and from the scarcity and singularity of the name there is no doubt they are the descendants of the former possessors."

"In 1265 Nicholaus de Spauford lived in this neighborhood."

"Friar Walter Spofford was Prior of Helaugh in 1320."

Then follows an extended notice of Thomas Spofford, appointed by the Pope in 1422 Bishop of Hereford, of whom we have previously spoken, and Burke proceeds: "After this the family became converts, and John was many years Vicar of Silkstone, from which he was ejected in 1663. John, his son, with many of the old families from that part of Yorkshire, were driven during the civil war to America, where, as one of the Pilgrim Fathers, he was founder of a large and influential family in Massachusetts.

"After the revolution (1689) the family property was in Wistow Lordship, Turnhead House, and Barlby Manor, Yorkshire; and alliances were formed with the Fawkeses, Nixons, Laceys, Lodges, Listers, &c. They migrated to Howden, and have since intermarried with some of the most influential families of the district."

The pedigree of intervening generations has been communicated to the writer by an English correspondent, Mr. Markham Spofforth of London; in common with whom, the family on this side the water, trace back their descent to Simeon Spofford, who was born in 1593, and died in 1670; and Burke in his "Visitation" gives us two generations earlier than this, thus: Robert Spofford of Newsham married Maria Maynell of London. Their son Thomas of Wistow Lordship, married Lucy Simeon, daughter of John Simeon, Esq., who died 1593. Their son Simeon, born 1593, married Mary, daughter of Walter Palmer, Esq., who died 1670. From their son Robert, the Spofforths of England, now known to us, descended; and from their son John, Vicar of Silkstone, and of whose wife's name we are not informed, we descended.

Mr. Spofforth, who is an ardent defender of the crown and active agent in the support of the present order of things, writes in 1853, "I sent your Record to Mr. Burke, the celebrated Herald, who has given it a full notice in the third volume of his 'Visitation of England.' The identity of John Spofford (the first settler in America) with our family is fully recognized. Mr. Burke is 'Ulster King of Arms,' and his recognition of this connection is sufficient to give it authenticity."

Our English cousins appear not to have paid much attention to the subject of genealogy, wisely depending on their own acts for honor, rather than upon ancestry. Col. Robert Spofforth of Scarborough—the head of the Spofforth family in England—asks if the writer is in possession of any documents clearly showing that the family of Spofforth or Spofford ever possessed the ancient castle and manor; and supposes his grandfather to have been the first to raise the family from humble origin. The pedigree above given shows a descent from Simeon, born in 1593—our common ancestor—through several generations of highly respectable connections.

Those of our name who are lovers of music will be interested to learn somewhat concerning Reginald Spofforth, whose name is familiar as a glee composer. He was born in Southwell, Nottinghamshire, Eng., A. D. 1768, and educated by an uncle, from whom he inherited a large property. He was organist of Catterick Church, and afterward removed to London—his death occurring in 1826.

The authorship of the fine English glees "Hark! the lark at Heaven's Gate sings," "Hail, Smiling Morn," &c., with the majestic old hymn tune "Tolland," sufficiently marks him as a composer of rare merit.

There has long been a tradition that our family name originated in the word Spa—a spring of mineral water—and the ford is of course quite obvious. An English correspondent gives the same etymology of the words, and says—"the district in which Spof--fforth lies is a mineral one, and there are numerous mineral springs in the neighborhood."

The name and family are recognized as of Saxon origin, and probably came in possession of the domain about A. D. 830, much as the Percys did, who succeeded them. As the Saxons held the government two or three hundred years, including the period of the Danish invasion, estates were probably held by force of arms and hence the necessity for castles and fortifications.

Later researches tend to confirm our present spelling of the name. We have found no trace of Sp*a*fford, or of Spof*forth* previous to 1600; and why the a was so much in use by the earlier generations in this country, or why the present families in England are Spofforths, does not appear.

Our English contemporaries have far greater advantages for the pursuit of these investigations than we have, and we should be happy to see a work from the pen of some antiquarian there.

Having proved, as we think, the existence of extensive possessions formerly pertaining to our family, and having established the connection between the ancient people of whom we have spoken and ourselves of modern times, some will say—"If all this be true, cui bono—what good?"—and see no advantage unless money is to be made.

We reply—Although we no more expect profit from the ancient domain of Spofforth than from our share in the Garden of Eden, and estimate our rights in the Castle on a par with our stock in Noah's Ark, still it is a source of gratification to know there is still remaining the pile which constituted the dwelling of our ancestors, and that here were the "pastures, woods and meadows" over which their eyes wandered eight hundred years ago!

How this spot—the family seat for generations—was defended in those rude ages, and how the possessors suffered when a ruthless invader drove them from the beloved hearthstone, we may imagine, but the story will never be told.

It is to be regretted that we can know so little of the man who had the energy to transplant himself from his native land, to a wilderness three thousand miles away, and to endure the hardships and privations incident to such an enterprise. He seems to have had a large experience in pioneer life, for after the first settlement must have become a comfortable abode, by the labor of several hundred people for thirty years, he embraced an opportunity to remove several miles into the woods, where the wildness of the surroundings may be judged of by a vote of the town of Rowley to pay "fifty shillings a head for all the wolves caught in John Spofford's pen." The family had been living on this spot twenty-three years when Mr. Goodrich, his wife and three children were killed by Indians in Byfield, only three miles from them, and almost directly between them and their friends and townsmen in Rowley; and they had been here twenty-eight years at the time of the massacre at Haverhill of Rev. Mr. Rolfe and about forty others, when the town was burned—the conflagration being plainly visible to our friends in their lonely habitation on "Rowley Hill," only five miles away.

At the date of the former edition it was not doubted that John Spofford spent the remainder of his days on this farm, but later research makes it highly probable that he returned to Rowley two years before his death, on the assignment of the farm to his sons, and the devising the lease of the "Prudence Cotton Farm" to his wife and youngest son. Of this Prudence Cotton Farm we can find no trace excepting in his will. There is but little doubt that it was in Rowley, and as the witnesses of his will were residents of that place, they were probably his neighbors at the time of his decease. Mr. Gage, in his history of Rowley, mistakes the death of John Spofford, Jun., on the Rowley records in 1696, for that of the father, which occurred in 1678. The son survived eighteen years, and was buried at Bradford, while they worshiped with that church. John Spofford, Sen., being fifty years old in 1662—as we learn from an affidavit on file at Salem—was but sixty-six years of age at his decease in 1678, in which year his will was entered at the probate office, 6th 9th month.

This will shows him to have been possessed of a competent share of worldly goods, and as we have so few records of this man, holding the important position of progenitor of all the Spoffords in America, we shall give it entire, as an ancient and authentic record of one of his last acts.

THE LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT OF JOHN SPOFFORD, SENIOR.

I commit my soul into the hands of God who gave it, and my body to the earth, to be decently buried, and as to that estate which the Lord hath given, I dispose of it as follows, after my debts are paid.

Imprimis:—As to my dear and loving wife, I give to her the lease of the house and lands of Mrs. Prudence Cotton.

Also I give to her all the household stuff, to be at her disposal, except the arms and ammunition. Also I give to her two cows, and one calf, also four sheep. I give to her and my son Francis, to be equally divided between them, one young horse, also to have the use of four acres of land at the farm during her life. Furthermore, I will that my son Francis his portion be at my wife's disposal till he comes to the age of twenty-one if she lives so long, for that end that he may be useful to her in carrying on her husbandry work.

Item: That which I give to my son Francis, is the two young oxen, and the mare, and the cart, and all the furniture belonging to husbandry. Also one yearling calf, these to be at my wife's disposal till he be of age above said, and these things, or the worth of them, to be faithfully paid to him. Also I give him the small gun, and four acres of land at great meadows, and what may so fall by virtue of any town grant.

Item: I give to my son John, two steers coming three years old, and the long fowling-piece, and one half of the lease of the farm together with twenty pounds stock I formerly gave him.

Item: I give to my son Thomas, my village lands, and the grey horse, and two sheep, and one spring hog, and one two year old heifer and the great musket.

Item: I give to my son Samuel the other half of the lease of the farm and two young steers, one that comes three years old and one that comes four years old, and one spring hog, and about ten pounds stock which I have already given him.

Item: I give to my daughter Elizabeth one two year old heifer and two sheep.

Item: I give to Hannah one cow, one three year old heifer, and two sheep.

Item: I give to my daughter Mary one cow and one calf and two sheep.

Item: I give to my daughter Sarah, one cow and one calf and two sheep.

Item: I also appoint my loving wife and my son Thomas to be joint executors of this my last will, and my children to be paid at marriage or at coming one and twenty years old, and if any die before, their portion to be devided among the rest.

In witness whereof I have set my hand and seal 8th 8th month, (Oct. 8th) 1678.

JOHN SPOFFORD.

Signed, sealed and delivered in presence of us,
JOHN JOHNSON,
PHILIP NELSON.

In court held at Ipswich 6th 9th month, 1678, this will proved to be the last will and testament of John Spofford, by the oaths of Philip Nelson and John Johnson.

We may learn something of the character of the man of whom we write, from an anecdote creditable to him, and characteristic of the time in which he lived—which has been handed down by tradition from Samuel Spofford, who was born in 1653 and lived to be ninety-one years old, through a descendant born in the middle of the last century, and who related the story to the writer.

During his residence at Rowley a severe drought was followed by a great scarcity of food, and our good forefather repaired to Salem to purchase corn for his family and neighbors. The merchant to whom he applied, foreseeing a greater scarcity and higher prices, refused to open his store to supply his want. Having pleaded the necessities of himself and others in vain, he cursed him to his face! but on being immediately taken before a magistrate, charged with profane swearing, he replied that he had not cursed profanely, but as a religious duty, and quoted Prov. 11 : 26 as his authority. The words are, "He that withholdeth corn from the hungry, the people shall curse him." He was immediately acquitted, and by the summary power of courts in those days, the merchant was ordered to deliver to him as much corn as he wished to pay for.

The disposal of the lease at the new settlement to his older sons, and the provision that he makes for his wife and youngest son—then but thirteen years old—together with the request that he may be "useful to her in her husbandry work," indicate that he was expecting soon to leave them, and to this pious care he was probably admonished by failing health rather than by the infirmities of age.

The exact date of his death is not known, but it doubtless immediately preceded the presentation of his will at the probate office, November 6th—old style, or 17th new style—1678. His decease was four years before there was any organized church or any burying ground in Bradford, and more than fifty years previous to the formation of the church in Georgetown, which leads us to the conclusion that he must have been buried at Rowley, though diligent search has failed to discover any stone marking the place of his rest.

His "loving wife," Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas Scott, of Ipswich, merchant, must also have crossed the ocean, as she is known to have been the wife of John Spofford, only eleven years subsequent to the settlement of Ipswich, by newly arrived emigrants from England. We have no record of her death, but she was no doubt laid beside her husband, in that hallowed ground which contains the dust of nearly all the first settlers of Rowley, where

> "Each in his narrow cell forever laid,
> The rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep."

The gravestones of the earliest date are in the old cemetery in Bradford, where may be read inscriptions in memory of John 2d, his son David, Sarah the wife of Samuel, and Mrs. Abigail Ames, their daughter. In a church formerly standing in that enclosure, they held their religious connection from 1684 till 1732 when the church in Georgetown was formed.

John Spofford, 2d, as it appears, continued to live on the spot where the first house in Georgetown was built, and March 9th, 1675, married Sarah Wheeler of Rowley. He died—leaving eight children—April 22, 1597, aged forty-nine, and his widow four years subsequently married Caleb Hopkinson, of Bradford—now Groveland. Her daughter Martha married Caleb Hopkinson, Jr., from whom the many families of the name in this town are descended. This Martha, after the death of her husband, who was known as Ensign Caleb Hopkinson, married Ebenezer Kimball, but lies buried beside the grave of her former husband, and her mother, in the cemetery in Groveland.

Samuel, the third son of John the immigrant, is worthy of notice as the patriarch of a very numerous posterity, among whom are the many who during the last century removed to New Hampshire and Maine; and also as being a connecting link between the first and fourth generations, living as he did to the advanced age of ninety-one years. The legacies bequeathed by him to his children, prove him to have been a person of good estate, and it is quite evident that he was possessed of more than the ordinary amount of learning in his day. We have had the pleasure of seeing an account book kept by him, and in which he was wont to note down his family affairs, and which is now in the possession of one of his descendants, Mr. M. A. Stickney, of Salem, who also has in his keeping the wedding dress of his great-grandmother, a daughter of Samuel Spofford the subject of this notice; and which is indeed an interesting relic, almost a century and a half having elapsed since the sun shone upon her bridal day. At the house of this daughter, Mrs. Stickney of Byfield, the father spent his last days, and died Jan. 1, 1744, having sustained during his long life a connection with the old churches in Rowley, Bradford and New Rowley.

John Spofford, 3rd, from whom, with most of the families of the name in this vicinity, the author of this work descended, was born and spent his entire life upon the farm which was leased by the first settler. He seems to have been an industrious and thriving farmer, and in his will, made about two months previous to his death, in August, 1735, he confirms to his sons, Francis, John and Abner, deeds of lands—probably farms which he had already given them, and makes ample provision for his wife and "our three little sons," Daniel, Eliphalet and William by name, children of a second wife, Sarah Poor.

Of these "three little sons" it may be of interest to relate that William died in the army during the French and Indian wars; that Eliphalet was captain of a Rowley company, attached to the regiment in command of his brother Daniel, which marched as far as Cambridge at the time of the Lexington fight, but failed to reach the scene of action till the affray was over. A son of Capt. Eliphalet, and the father of the writer, being absent when his regiment left, hastened home, equipped himself, and following on foot and alone, overtook the regiment at Topsfield.

Little value seems to have been placed upon the shares falling to the family of John Spofford, Sen., in the division of lands in the various parts of the town. He gives—as we have seen—to his son Francis "what may fall by virtue of any town grant," and to Thomas "my village lands," which according to the meaning of these old records refers to lands in the out-settlements. As we find no evidence that either of these persons left any posterity, the rights must have reverted to others of the family, as John 3d, in his will, authorizes his wife to "sell and dispose of out-skirts of land and meadows, and rights in new townships not yet settled, and of rights in any common, not yet divided, for the benefit of herself and "little sons." This will was made in the near prospect of death "from a grievous sore, supposed to be a cancer," as he says in connection with several expressions of Christian faith and resignation. He, with his wife, Dorcas Hopkinson, were admitted to the Bradford church, 11th 3d month, 1702; and he united, together with his second wife, Sarah Poor, with the second Rowley church at its formation in 1732, and presided at the first parish meeting Oct. 5, 1731. He died Oct. 4, 1735, and lies buried in the old cemetery in Georgetown.

About the year 1760, the old farm-house was removed from its original site, to one more convenient. It was a two-storied house, which was burned a few years later, and replaced by another, which has now yielded to the destroying hand of time; and so the spot which witnessed the joys and sorrows of three successive generations, is left vacant:—the earlier generations of the record we now present, are all passed from earth; the ones next following are sharing the joys and responsibilities of life, to which those just commencing the journey are being called by the beckoning hand of the future.

(35.) Col. Daniel Spofford and Judith Follansbee

Of Newbury. Married 1741; settled in Rowley—now Georgetown. He built and occupied for a long time the house owned by the late Sewell Spofford, near the "Old Farm." He was Colonel of a regiment, which marched to Cambridge, at the time of the Lexington fight; was Representative of the town 1776; member of the convention which formed the constitution in 1780; and was elected Deacon of the church in Georgetown in 1781. He built several churches, and his skill as an architect may be judged of by the way in which he effected the enlargement of the meeting house formerly occupied by the Congregational Society in Peabody. The building was cut in two crosswise, the ends moved apart, making room for two rows of new pews. Upon the still greater increase of the society, his services were again required to enlarge their borders, which he did by dividing the building lengthwise, and making two rows of pews with a broad aisle through its whole length. In this meeting-house the writer remembers attending religious service about A. D. 1800; it was a large unpainted structure, with many windows of unequal size, and stood upon the site now occupied by the present Congregational church.

Col. Spofford married a second wife, Betsy Smith of Newbury; and a third, the widow of Rev. David Jewett, whose maiden name was Phebe Thurston. He died April 26, 1803.

* Lucy Peabody was daughter of Deacon Nathan Peabody of Boxford, who was a son of John Peabody, who was the son of Francis Peabody of Topsfield—born at St. Albans, Hertfordshire, England, in 1614, and married Mary Foster, daughter of Reginald Foster, of whom honorable mention is made by Scott, in "Marmion" and the "Lay of the Last Minstrel." The family came over in the ship Planter, in 1635. The father, John, settled in Duxbury. Francis was an original settler of Hampton, to which place he went with Mr. Batchelder, from Lynn, in 1638. He was in Topsfield in 1659, and was a large landholder in that town and in Boxford.

Her mother was Priscilla Capen, daughter of Rev. Joseph Capen, forty years minister of Topsfield. Mrs. Capen was Priscilla, daughter of Capt. John Appleton of Ipswich, whose wife, Priscilla, was daughter of Rev. Jose Glover, minister of Sutton, Surrey, Eng. He preached some time in London, but embarked with his family for America in 1638, with Stephen Day, a printing press, and three men servants, who were bound to work for Mr. Glover three years. He died on the passage, but Day set up the press, which is supposed to have been the first in North America. He had a daughter Sarah (who married a son of Gov. Winthrop), and two sons. He owned a house, garden, and three acres of land in Boston. His widow married President Dunster of Harvard College.

He died in the army during the French and Indian wars; she married Nov. 16, 1761, Jacob Hazen, from whom are descended the Hazens of this vicinity.

* General Spofford entered the United States service in Feb. 1862, as Lieut. Col. of the 97th New York Regiment, commissioned Colonel Jan. 20, 1865. An unusual amount of active service fell to his share, and the battles of Cedar Mountain, second Bull Run, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville and Gettysburg, gave full scope to the military skill and personal bravery for which he has distinguished himself. In the last named engagement he led several charges in person, almost miraculously escaping death—having his horse shot under him and his clothing pierced by bullets. At Macon, Ga., in Libby Prison, and while under fire of the Union guns at Charleston, he had sixteen months' experience in the horrors of prison life,—all of which perils he survived to see the surrender of Lee, and the close of the rebellion, to be made Brigadier General by brevet, and to wear his well-earned laurels.

END OF REGISTER.

APPENDIX.

To relieve the dry details of names and dates, and with the hope of interesting some who may not find their names, or those of their ancestors, on these pages, the writer proposes to devote a space to the times which have passed in review, during his somewhat extended period of observation, and in which six generations have been more or less interested,—having seen this number of generations in several instances in the family, including his own direct line.

It was my fortune to come upon the stage of action immediately after the revolution. The friends by whom I was surrounded in my earliest years, had been actors in it, many had served in the armies, others had devoted a large part of their estates, and an important period of their lives, to its success, were imbued with its spirit, and it was the subject of their daily conversation and their evening tales. In addition to these, a few of the surviving soldiers of the old French war still lingered here. I have heard an ancient connection of the family relate how he, with other soldiers, drew the cannon across a morass, and up the height in the rear, and accomplished the capture of Louisburg, in 1755. And one of the captors of Quebec, who fought on the Plains of Abraham, still walked among us. I call to mind the appearance and conversation of many soldiers of the revolution, who fought at Bunker Hill, Saratoga, and Trenton, and have a vivid recollection of the spirit and interest with which they "fought their battles o'er again," and gloried in its final success, while they related its sufferings and privations. The late Rev. Dr. Samuel Spring, who went as Chaplain with Arnold and Burr up the Kennebec, and through the wilderness of Maine and Canada, and stood by Montgomery when he fell on the cold night of December 31, 1775, before the walls of Quebec, was many years pastor of the North Church of Newburyport. I have seen him many times, and heard him preach in Mr. Braman's pulpit in Georgetown. The spot, marked with a marble slab bolted to the everlasting rock, inscribed "Here fell Gen. Montgomery, Dec. 31, 1775," I visited Sept. 27, 1850. It is at the upper end of the river street, whose width alone separates the river from the frowning cliff two hundred feet in hight, which street no gate or barrier now intercepts.

I knew a tall member of Washington's life-guard, who used to labor for my father and others. I was acquainted for years with a neighbor, whose forehead was grazed by a ball at Bunker Hill, and a distant relative whose arm was shot off by a cannon ball at Trenton. Two others of my acquaintance survived the horrors of the Jersey prison ship.

Our family I believe, were to a man devoted to the cause of American independence. I never heard of one who was a Tory. Two were soldiers for long terms. They were mostly substantial farmers and heads of families. They were both officers and soldiers in the local militia, and performed short terms of service in arms, and bore heavily the taxes, privations and hardships of the war.

I have a commission of my great-grandfather, John Spofford, (of the third generation) as Lieutenant, signed by Gov. Shute, in 1721. He was Captain in 1731. I have a commission of Abner Spofford, as Captain in the local militia, in 1743. His brother, Daniel, was Colonel in 1775, and marched in command of the regiment to Cambridge, arriving too late to share in the battle of Lexington, April 19, 1776. No name is oftener recorded as on the Committee of Safety, and other committees for raising men and money, during the war, and he represented the town in the legislature in 1776, and was of the convention that formed the State constitution of 1780. Eliphalet, my grandfather, was Captain of a company, and my father a private, in the march to Cambridge. William, brother to Eliphalet, is supposed to have died in the army, in the French and Indian war of 1755, and Moody Spofford, Esq., the eminent architect, was Lieutenant in an expedition to Ticonderoga, during the war of the revolution.

Col. Winslow P. Spofford entered the army of the United States as Captain in the 11th Maine Regiment in the autumn of 1861; was promoted to be Lieutenant Colonel in 1863, and as such had command of his regiment through the Peninsular campaign. He received wounds at Bermuda Hundred, June 2, 1864, of which he died at Fortress Monroe, June 17. He was a Christian patriot, and was highly complimented by his superiors for his fidelity and bravery. I have several of his letters from the army.

Col. John P. Spofford of Herkimer County, New York, entered the army as Lieutenant-Colonel of the 97th New York Regiment, October, 1861. By the sickness of Colonel Wheelock, he had full command of his regiment in a series of bloody battles, was a sufferer in Libby Prison nine months, was placed under fire by the rebels before Fort Sumter, was wounded at Hatch's Run, commanded at Antietam, where the 97th lost 105 of 208 men, and was breveted Brigadier General for his bravery at Gettysburg. He was the only field officer and one of but three commissioned officers who returned with the 97th to share in the grand reception at Utica, in July, 1865.

Many others of the family did good service in the great rebellion, several lost their lives, and one, a resident at the South, served voluntarily in the rebel army.

I have seen many of the officers and soldiers of the army of the revolution, of the war of 1812, and of 1861, and it is curious to observe that notwithstanding the general simplicity of the times, and the poverty of the nation, the show and cost of the uniforms of the armies, especially among the officers, was double in former times to those during the late rebellion.

An immense change has taken place in the use of books and newspapers and magazines within my recollection. A post rider came his weekly rounds, with the Newburyport Herald, through Newbury, Bradford, Boxford and Rowley, and it was the only paper that came into this region previous to 1800. There was no post office in Groveland till 1809; nor in Georgetown or Bradford till some years later. I was postmaster here some years, and have seen the quarterly returns of this office the first year—the receipts did not exceed five dollars per quarter, and the delivery of but a single Boston paper. Though books and papers were not sown broadcast over the country, as at present, yet what they had were much more thoroughly read and studied. With one or two papers a week, nearly every article was perused, and many an article or item fixed in memory. While books and periodicals have increased a hundred fold, and the cost of education four fold, it is doubtful whether the people are any better qualified for the duties of life than formerly.

A few of the fourth generation of the Spofford family were on the stage when I first took knowledge of my surroundings. One grand-parent, Col. Daniel Spofford, survived till my sixteenth, and his eighty-fourth year, and died April, 1803. He was active in body and mind to his last year. He wore a green cap when about his work, and a white wig in the deacon's seat at church. Samuel and Amos, heads of other families in Boxford, were of the same generation, and several females are still in my memory. Probably many others of that generation survived to this century, in their distant homes, but as they were diligent laborers, and roads were bad, visits were few and far between. Mails and post offices were scarcely known, so that very little knowledge was ever transmitted from the descendants of those who removed to distant places, and many members of the family, of first rate intelligence, have owned themselves indebted to the first edition of our humble pamphlet for any knowledge of their ancestry in England, or several of the first generations in this country. I have never heard of any correspondence or knowledge of the family in England till my own with Markham Spofforth, of London, in 1853.

Many houses in the early generations were situated in the open fields, and the people passed out on the Sabbath and other occasions, through gates and bars. Such was the situation of my native place, through the whole of my grandfather's occupancy, and down to 1797, when I remember the removal of several gates. I can now show many neglected paths through pastures and woods, deep worn by the heavy teams which conveyed the timber to mill or market, over which a chaise or light wagon never passed.

While writing this sketch, has occurred the great eclipse of August 7, 1869, upon which much has been written, but having witnessed the eclipse of June 16, 1806, total here, this last has appeared to me of very small account. It has called up many and some extravagant and unreliable accounts of that of 1806, of which I here record my own impressions. I was eighteen years of age, had just been studying Furguson's Astronomy with deep interest, and had waited with impatience two or three years for the time to arrive. The day was unclouded. The elder members of our two adjacent families were absent. My uncle and father, building the first bridge from Newburyport to Plum Island. With sisters and cousins assembled, we watched its advance. About 11 A. M. the light grew pale and white, but was still abundant for clear sight, till the point of the shadow passed over us. We saw its approach, and the instant we entered the circle of totality, it was dark. Seven eighths of the remaining light went out, when the last pencil of rays was cut off by the moon. The dark circle of the shade of the moon was 104 miles in diameter, which passed us in about four minutes. As the whole hemisphere was partially lighted, except the cone of total shade, whose point just reached our earth, it was as light within that circle as a starlight night, and some light was apparent round the edge of the moon. The sensation of viewing a scene which would not be viewed here again by any then living, was intensely interesting and never to be for gotten. When the first pencil of rays struck down upon us, all interest was gone, and the light assumed its heat and color, as we gradually passed out of the partial shadow. A few fowls went to roost, and crowed and cackled with surprise at the return of light. All passed on, and but myself, of us who viewed it together, remains to recall the scene.

At the date of this scene, I still resided on my paternal acres, of which no title is known to exist more ancient than the Spofford's. Among these hills and vales and water-brooks were all my early wanderings, and earliest attachments. I could point out the paths they traveled, the water-falls they used, and cellars they built over, occupied, and deserted, and a few of the earliest houses were still remaining. I left with great reluctance, and regret that so many others have followed my example, and left those happy homes and scenes of youthful joys, to the cold calculation of strangers and foreigners.

In my memory the roads were narrow and little traveled. The houses, all but two or three, unpainted. No single horse wagons, and but two or three double wagons, and half a dozen chaises were used in what is now Georgetown. The people were nearly all farmers, and I can recollect but two or three families who did not work on their own lands and live in their own houses.

From 1770 to 1820 there was little or no gain of inhabitants in this region, as tax lists in my possession, my own observation, and the census will show. We considered our towns, the county of Essex, and the State, filled up, and families were removing every winter to people New Hampshire, Vermont, and Maine. Ohio alone was known, or scarcely heard named, of the great west, and much anxiety was felt how people who remained here were to be supplied with wood and timber much longer. But I have lived to see our State increase from 379,000 to 1,400,000—Boston from 20,000 to 220,000, and the towns and cities of old Essex in proportion, and our forests apparently on the increase! And the nation from 4,000,000 to 40,000,000.

The old Georgetown church had a tall spire, and was unpainted, except the trimmings, when I left in 1813, and no bell had sounded from its tower. A Baptist church stood near Stickney's mill, with neither tower or paint,—pastorates lasted half a century—ordinations were great occasions. I remember that of Mr. Braman, June, 1797; its vast concourse of people, and its profusion of refreshments in private houses, and for sale on the common.

The old church which did service that day, was raised in 1769, and now completes its one hundred years. In it I attended worship from eight or ten years old to twenty-five. Well do I remember the high pulpit, the arched window, the sounding board, the deacon's seat, and the galleries on three sides. The pews were square and surmounted with bannisters; a "body of seats" occupied the centre of the house, but the seats had been taken up at different times, and the ground sold for pews, and such was the manner of building the two rows of pews which at first surrounded the church—the ground floor was sold, and the pews were built by the owners. I have often heard my parents relate circumstances of the raising and finishing of that house, and the different branches of the family had an important agency in its erection. I have heard preach in that house, still standing: Dr. Spring, before named, the aged Dr. Joseph Dana of Ipswich, Cleveland of Essex, Huntington of Topsfield, Bradford of Rowley, and Professor Woods then of West Newbury, and was personally acquainted with Dr. Parish of Byfield, well known as an orator, theologian and politician, and my mother at fifteen years of age, heard the first sermon in it, by Mr. Whitefield.

I was many years contemporary with and the friend and physician of my uncle, the architect and master builder of the first Haverhill bridge, in 1794, also of the Rocks and Andover bridges across the Merrimack, also one across the Connecticut, at Winsor, Vt., and across the Piscataqua between Portsmouth and Dover. Timothy Palmer, the "celebrated New England bridge builder," was his apprentice, and I distinctly recollect the model of the arch patented by him with the knowledge and consent of my uncle, with every timber and bolt in due proportion, as got up in my uncle's shop. Palmer went south with several Essex workmen, and built the first bridges across the Schuylkill at Philadelphia and the Potomac at Washington. He resided many years in Newburyport.

I recollect the light and beautiful arches of the first Haverhill bridge, springing from the abutments and piers, with lattice railings for safety, as seen from Chadwick's ferry boat below. I remember being led over the unfinished bridge, and seeing through into the piers and water. Raising the floor to the middle of the framework, and a ponderous covering, has destroyed its picturesqueness, beauty and symmetry.

Should here and there a copy of this record survive the present century, it may gratify some curious reader to know something of him who now attempts to construct a chain of connection between the past and future generations of our race.

My birth and residence in the western part of what was then Rowley, was on the farm first owned by a great-uncle (No. 30) then by my grandfather and father to 1813. My chief business was farming, till I was of age, some part of each winter attending the town school, which with private studies evenings and leisure hours, and a few months' tuition in Latin under Rev. Isaac Braman, furnished my stock of general education. At twenty-one I was employed to teach the school of my own district, and in that employment in my own town spent a large part of the four succeeding winters. I commenced medical studies in October, 1810, with Drs. Whiton and Parkhurst of Winchendon, and with them and in my schools spent the next three years,—was licensed as a practitioner of medicine by the Censors of the Massachusetts Medical Society at Worcester, in June, 1813. Practiced in Hampstead, N. H., till March, 1817,—in this town now fifty-two years,—being for more than forty-seven years the only practicing physician in it.

I have been concerned in most of the improvements in this town and vicinity,—the widening of roads, the laying out of new streets and lots, and building several houses. In 1821 Rev. Mr. Perry and myself took a leading part in establishing Merrimack Academy, for which we and our associates were richly compensated, if it had been only by the education of our own families, but its benefits were far from being thus confined.

I was member of the Senate of Massachusetts, 1838–9, and become acquainted with many of the distinguished men of that day—Levi Lincoln, Daniel Webster, Edward Everett, and S. G. Goodrich (Peter Parley), were well known to me. In March, 1821, I visited Washington, and witnessed the inauguration of President Harrison, and visited the tomb of Washington. Mr. Clay, Mr. Benton, Mr. Calhoun, Mr. Buchanan, were members of the Senate, and J. Q. Adams of the House. Their countenances I recollect.

In 1826, I was concerned in establishing the chain ferry at the place where a ferry had been maintained a hundred years, till the erection of Haverhill bridge, and probably will be till succeeded by a bridge here, which is at this time much needed, and in contemplation.

The construction of the Boston and Maine railroad to Haverhill in 1838, suggested to my mind the idea of one down the south bank of the river to Groveland and Georgetown. In 1844 I examined the route, and laid out in my own mind a road almost precisely on its present location. I opened my plan to friends here and at Georgetown, and found among its earnest and active advocates, Mr. George Spofford and C. S. Tenney, Esq., but a substantial step was accomplished by obtaining in February, 1855, a survey and estimate, principally by the aid of Mr. George Tenney. The act of incorporation was obtained the same year, and soon after the plan was extended, and a survey and charter was obtained for a road to Newburyport. Divisions arose, and routes through West Boxford and West Newbury each had earnest advocates, and obtained acts of incorporation.

I suppose no one acquainted with its origin and history, will dispute my claim as original projector and constant and earnest advocate of the route as first chartered, till its final accomplishment, though sometimes almost alone; or now doubt that the present road is furnishing more accomodation than any rival project could have furnished. A census of passengers in September, 1869, gave 3600 passengers a week, and they are constantly increasing.

It will be perceived that the spread of the settlements from the original thirteen States across the continent, and the rise of many of its principal cities, has occurred within the period of my observation. I have watched the progress of Boston from a city of 20,000 inhabitants to near 220,000, while the splendor and cost of its public and private buildings is quite as remarkable as their number.

While sending this to press, I have been called to attend the obsequies of our kinsman, George Peabody—No. 733 of this genealogy—whose remains have been escorted over the ocean by ships of England and the United States. Of him I need say nothing, whose donations to the poor of London, and for libraries and educational purposes in this country, are now the theme of the current literature of both continents.

Being his senior, and intimate in the family from childhood, I have noticed every transition in his fortunes, from youth to age, and have repeatedly been favored with his visits. In September, 1866, at his request, and standing by his side in the presence of an assembled multitude, I laid the corner-stone of the Memorial Church, which now stands the principal ornament of Georgetown, his mother's birth-place and my own.

He called on me a few days before his final departure for Europe. I endeavored to dissuade him from the voyage in his feeble health. But he had no dread of the ocean, and hoped that the balmy breezes of southern France might alleviate his complaints. I rode with him to Danvers, on his last journey thither. On Tuesday, Feb. 8, I stood beside the casket, in which the highest skill and art of London had enclosed his remains, in the sably dressed and dimly lighted church, on the spot where he first attended worship, and where an hour after, the family and thousands, including a son of Queen Victoria, sent to honor the occasion, assembled to listen to the eulogy of Mr. Winthrop, and appropriate prayers. I was in the long procession to the place of his final rest, near the remains of his father and eldest sister, long since departed, and to which those of his mother will soon be removed from a distant State. Many thousands lined the streets to view the scene, not deterred by a blinding snow. "Sorrowing most of all that they should see his face no more."

NOTES.

THE following scraps of the past history of individuals of the family, may gratify a laudable curiosity. For most of them we are indebted to our friend, Paul N. Spofford, of New York.

Robert de Spofford, 8th Prior of Helaugh, was elected April 5, 1320, and served thirteen years.—Dugdale's Hist. of Monasteries, vol. 6, page 437.

Roger de Spofford signed as witness to a settlement in 1396.

John Spofford is mentioned in a roll of names, in the 15th year of Richard II, being A. D. 1396.

Thomas De Spofforth or Spofford, received the royal assent to his election as Abbot of St. Mary's, June 8, 1405.

Thomas Spofford was ambassador from Henry V, to the Council of Constance about 1412.—Dugdale's Hist. Monasteries.

Henry de Spofford was a chaplain in 1338.—Plympton Cor.

Robesson, Plympton, Colthorp, Stockton, Lynton, and near fifty other estates, or livings, are or were held by feudal tenure as of the Manor of Spofford.—Omnia Fœdera.

A certain carucate of land, whereof the Abbot of St. Mary's held one part, and the Prioress of Appleton the other, is mentioned.—See Allen's Hist. of Yorkshire, vol. 1, page 482.

Hon. George Spofford (487) was Fellow of Yale College; was Senator of the State of Connecticut; inventor of great improvements in the manufacture of paper; principally concerned in the establishment of the village of Spoffordsville; resided in Wilimantic. Died Nov. 5, 1848, aged 55.

Col. John Spofford (69 of our record), from whom Spofford's Landing, on the Sound near New York, was named, was first settler of Tinmouth, Vt.; served in the revolution; commanded a company at Ticonderoga and Crown Point, and as Acting Commander, received the sword on the surrender of the latter place, which is still in possession of the family.--Hough's History of Lewis County, N. Y., page 142.

Darius Spofford (174 of this record), was killed in battle. He was just married to Miss Blackburn. Receiving a death wound, he fell into the arms of his brother Phineas, by whose side he fought. "Brother," said he, "I am mortally hurt; take care of Lavinia."—Miner's History of Wyoming, page 243.

The following, though coming down from the Norman Conquerors, commemorates our name, and gives a lively picture of the songs and revelry, which once rang through the ancient castles and halls of England.

"Lord Percy made a solemn feast
In Spofford's princely hall—
And there came lords and there came knights,
His chiefs and barons all.

"With wassail, mirth and revelry,
The castle rung around:
Lord Percy called for song and harp,
And pipes of martial sound.

"The minstrels of that noble house,
All clad in robes of blue,
With silver crescents on their arms,
Attend in order due.

"The great achievements of that race
They sung, their high command,
How valiant Manfred o'er the seas
First led his northern band.

"Brave Galfrid next, of Normandy,
With vent'rous Rollo came,
And from his Norman castle won,
Assumed the Percy name.

"They sung how in the Conqueror's fleet
Lord William shipped his powers;
And gained a fair young Saxon bride,
With all her lands and towers."

ADVERTISEMENT.

The subscriber has at length the satisfaction of presenting a second edition of his Record, much enlarged beyond his original plan or promise. The long delay since it was prepared has been occasioned by the protracted sickness of Mr. Frothingham, the publisher, occasioning an entire change in the proprietorship of the office. We are all much indebted to Mr. Wm. M. Hall, paper-maker, of Lawrence, No. 1204 of this record, who has furnished a good article of paper for the work, sharing with the author the risk of future remuneration.

To those who have ordered copies, they will be sent at 50 cents. To others 75 cents to a dollar, according to style of binding.

Imperfections and defects will doubtless be noticed, in a work compiled from notes and observations extending through sixty years, and a correspondence spread from Louisiana to Maine, and reaching to Canada and Old England.

The former edition was unremunerative, but the writer was desirous of furnishing to the family an enlarged and improved work. The publication was undertaken in the expectation of aid, from the very liberal donation of one hundred and forty thousand dollars, by Mr. Peabody, to this country, for literary and scientific purposes; but under the construction given to his institutes this expectation is not likely to be realized, and with present prices and the enlarged work, the author has incurred an expense which he can ill afford, and not likely to be soon refunded by sale of copies, at the proposed price. He therefore feels justified in saying to those of the family who are favored with a competence, that if they feel disposed to assist in liquidating this expense, such contributions will be most gratefully acknowledged. In the meantime he enjoys the satisfaction of believing that his life-long labors have contributed to form a new chain of connection and increased interest among the descendants of the Emigrant of 1638.
